Lost Land of the Dodo. An Ecological History of Mauritius, Réunion & Rodrigues; 464 p., num. coloured illustrations, 16 col. pls, hardbound (dust jacket). Very good copy.
"Uninhabited by humans, the Mascarene Islands of the Indian Ocean were once home to an extraordinary range of birds and reptiles - giant tortoises, parrots, skinks, gekoes, burrowing boas, flightless rails and herons, and, most famously, the dodo. But the discovery of the three isolated islands in the 1500's, and their colonization in the 1600's, led to dramatic ecological changes. The dodo became extinct on its home island of Mauritius within several decades, and over the next 150 years most native vertebrates suffered the same fate. This fascinating book provides the first full ecological history of the Mascarene Islands as well as the specific story of each extinct vertebrate, accompanied by Julian Hume's superb colour illustrations."
A very informative book on the Mascarene Island's fauna, but emphasis is on birds and the illustrious Dodo is extensively treated. An as new copy in a perfect dust jacket.

 This copy is ex library Dr. Georges Bouet (with his name on front cover). With some of his notes in the text. When he knew he noted the local vernacular names with each bird, and added to the bibliography. Further are inserted separate leaves with notes (for different species he noted the differences between males and females, and gives measurements. He was an excellent hunter, in a time when Madagascar was still densely covered with forest (and in a time when ornithologists carried guns). For instance one reads: "Ardea minuta (var. podiceps), appelé a Itasy Salamvolaka, Itasy. Rare. Un seul exemplaire vu et tué en Nov. 1902". Most of his observations were made in the region of Itasy in the years 1902 and 1903 so well before this book was written.
